Welcome Note

On behalf of the United Nations and the Republic of Korea, thank you for joining us for the 3rd Annual Partnership for Technology in Peacekeeping Symposium.

This year's Symposium – Awareness, Protection, Innovation – addresses the significant challenges facing Peacekeeping today: how to we manage vast amounts of data available at our fingertips today, and transform it into the critical information needed to protect our troops, civilians and camps?

We have a very full week planned for you, including a keynote address from former High Level Panel on Technology expert A. Walter Dorn; the UN Open GIS Initiative workshops; informative breakout sessions and engaging tech, operational and policy discussions from thought leaders from both the United Nations and some Member States.

Throughout the Symposium, we invite you to delve into the big issues of the day. You'll also have the opportunity to put those ideas and theories into practice during the Working Groups that will result in tangible outcomes.

The Partnership for Technology in Peacekeeping Symposium is a great opportunity for you to join the dialogue, learn from another, collaborate with peers, experts and the United Nations staff.

Thank you for joining us. We hope you enjoy the event!

Anthony O'Mullane
Director
Information and Communications Technology Division, United Nations

Focused Content. New Ways of Thinking.

Plan Your Experience

We have three in-depth Topics and the United Nations Open GIS Initiative that will provide you with the opportunity to dive in. We've divided each topic into four Break-out Sessions that cover important areas that you, as technical professionals, will focus on.

Some sections of this agenda focus on the nontechnical aspects of peacekeeping technology such as training, coaching, guidance, leadership development, planning, testing and evaluating. We welcome new ideas that challenge conventional thinking, represent new approaches, and reflect emerging trends and emerging technology. We invite you to participate fully.

Build Your Agenda Based on Your Specific Needs and Areas of Interest

- | Focus on the strategic insight that supports the development or implementation of an actionable plan.

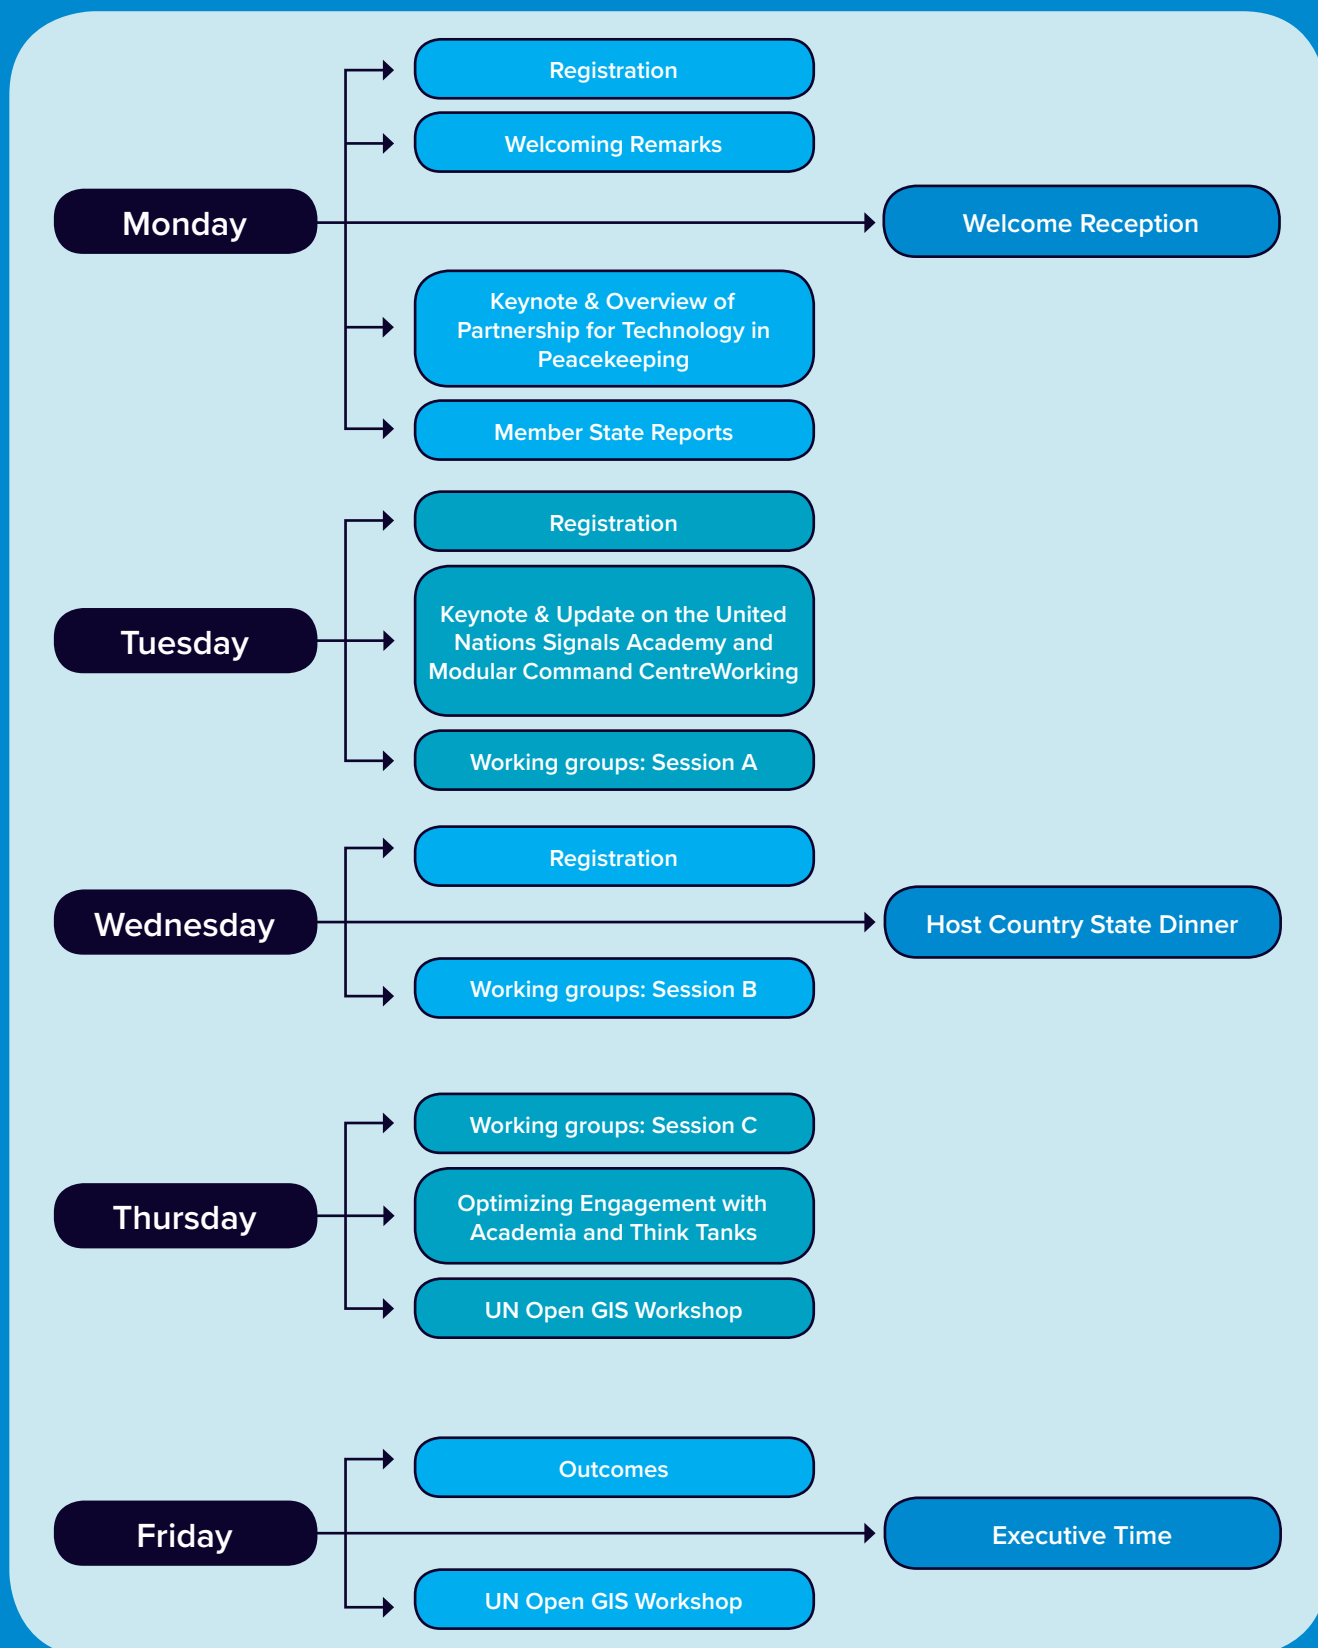

Interact with Colleagues from Other Member States and UN Staff

- | Moderated discussions are for exchanging ideas and best practices with your peers with a focus on the reality and challenges in peacekeeping today.
- | Breakout-Sessions and Power Networking/Coffee breaks offer small scale and interactive opportunities to drill down on specific topics.

Sponsor or Engage in a Project and/or Initiative

- | Walk away with actionable ideas for the topics, projects and initiatives that you are most interested in.

Agenda At a Glance

Agenda Topics

Geospatial Information Services and Situational Awareness

Enabling Geospatial Information Services (GIS) with the best available data for modelling and simulation, while setting a framework to control its dissemination to improve situational awareness and understanding of the operational environment, will provide peacekeeping with greater analysis at the service of decision making.

Protection Technologies: Sensors, Security and Reconnaissance

Increasingly, highly sensitive information needs to be collected, classified, correlated and shared in UN peace operations. Policies, procedures and platforms must be developed that protect and manage such information.

Innovation in Information and Communication Technologies

Applying innovative thinking to your challenges as a leader is one step in creating an innovative, organizational response to change and challenge. But developing a culture of innovation, where others throughout the organization apply innovative thinking to solve problems and develop new products and services, requires additional training. When direction, alignment, and commitment are created around innovation, organizations emerge as more productive and more innovative.

Optimizing Engagement with Academic and Research Institutions

Combining existing research and development with academic and UN Peacekeeping expertise to forge a strong partnership is the way to advance next generation technological innovations that serve peacekeeping and sustainable development.

Ki-Joune Li is a professor of Computer Science and Engineering at Pusan National University, South Korea. He received his Bachelor and Master of Science degrees in computer sciences from Seoul National University, in 1984 and 1986, and PhD in spatial databases from INSA de Lyon, France in 1992. Since then, he has been working on GIS and spatial databases and 2007 launched an ambitious multi-national project called ISA (Indoor Spatial Awareness) for indoor spatial information modeling. Since 2016, he has been leading the UN Open GIS initiative as a co-chair, which aims at developing and providing open source geospatial software to the UN. He is a directive board member of SSTD Endowment.
